Exciting updates to the Learner Experience before the final release!

We're approaching the final release of the new Learner Experience, with the old layout set to be retired in March!

Here are some changes that will be implemented during the coming weeks:

- Wider layout for smoother navigation: Single-column layouts will now match the width of multi-column layouts, eliminating page header jumps between different pages. Images, iFrames, and videos will be displayed in a larger format.
- New support page for Learners: A new feature will link learners to a support page, customized with your provided text and link.
- Improved notification management:
    - Ability to read notification content.
    - Direct navigation to the course activity where the post was created.
    - Option to remove individual notifications for better control.
- More visible "Mark as Completed" button: This makes it easier to identify and use the function to mark tasks as complete.
- Improved readability with larger text size: The body text on the main page will be updated to 16px for better accessibility and readability.
- Clearer icon for optional course content: A new icon will make it easier to understand what is optional, helping users prioritize their time and engagement.
- Chat & Global Search in the header: Aligned with the previous interface.
