

Introducing collection course ordering

2024-02-29 - Ester Andersson - Product Highlight

We are thrilled to unveil an exciting new feature: the ability to arrange courses within collections. This enhancement empowers you to provide your learners with a structured roadmap for their educational journey. Now, you can prescribe a recommended course completion sequence, ensuring a smooth and logical progression through your learning program.

Whether certain courses must be tackled in a specific order to meet prerequisites or to optimize comprehension, or if arranging them simply streamlines the learning path, this feature offers clarity for learners as they can now navigate through your content with confidence, knowing the optimal sequence to follow.

To order courses within a collection, go to the collection page and use the + and - to arrange the order.

The screenshot displays the 'Catalog builder' interface for a collection titled 'New at Learnifier'. The interface includes a search bar for courses and a list of three attached courses. A green arrow points to the order numbers (1, 2, 3) next to the course names, indicating the ability to reorder them. The courses are: Preboarding (order 1), Onboarding (order 2), and Cyber-security training (order 3). Each course has a status of 'Active' and a trash icon. The interface also shows a 'Collection settings' button and a 'Visibility: Active' status.

Order	Course Name	Status	Action
1	Preboarding	Active	Trash
2	Onboarding	Active	Trash
3	Cyber-security training	Active	Trash
