New feature: Checkpoint Questions

Activate learning with Checkpoint Questions

When participants stay active, engagement increases, and stronger memory traces are created. The result: more participants complete their training, and your investment in learning delivers real impact across the organization.

With our new content type, Checkpoint Questions, you can add small question blocks directly inside the activity in your Learnifier course. Each block can contain up to 10 questions in various formats, including single-select, multi-select, and true/false. Participants receive instant feedback on right and wrong answers, can compare their responses with others, and see clear progress along the way.

By reflecting, making decisions, and receiving immediate feedback, participants learn more deeply. They stay motivated, which strengthens both course completion rates and long-term learning outcomes.

Give your participants a meaningful learning experience → try the new feature today!
